Allied Health – Nursing Pathway

Allied Health and specifically the nursing field is one of the fastest growing occupations locally, regionally and nationally, with continued growth projected through the 2012 consensus. Nursing positions at all levels, from nursing assistants to degreed nursing professionals are in high demand and employers in this field are currently experiencing shortages in this workforce. This includes a continued strong need in hospitals and medical office settings and an increased need in home health, long-term care and assisted living environments.
